Dear Sir

In a recent visit to your art gallery I noticed some relics belonging to the Neapolitan family, & his sister Princeps Pauline Borgia and Queen Caroline of Naples, wife & daughter.

I am in possession of a brilliant-paste button, - set in solid silver, about $1\frac{1}{4}$ inch in diameter, containing one large brilliant in the middle, surrounded by two small ones, then by nine large ones and the outer tier by 24 small ones - one of these was lost a few years ago - which used adorned his coat. Murat was very vain and fond of dressing himself very fantastically, in a white coat, adorned with brilliant buttons, blue breeches and red boots, a high cap ~~adorned~~ with a plume & much to the chagrin of Napoleon, who was wont to call him a circus rider.

In the disastrous retreat of the French army from Moscow in 1812 ackd 16th Dec 1885 his baggage full int. the trunks of Casnets and some of the latter being quartered. among my maternal grandfather, Adam John Philip Tiper of Rajnit, a small town near Pleset in East Prussia, near the Russian & Polish frontier, an inferior officer offered two of these buttons, his share of the booty, to my grandfather for sale, asking an exorbitant price, thinking them to be genuine diamonds, but on being convinced that they were only paste, he bought them for a trifle, say about ten talers. What became of one of these buttons I do not know, the one in question was presented by him to my mother as a wedding ^{gift} ~~present~~ and by her in turn given to my wife, who had it converted into a brooch.

When the grape light strikes these brilliant, they look like diamonds of the first water.

My wife was so much delighted with the gems of your ethn gallery, both in painting and sculpture and which compare favorably with many we have seen in different parts in Europe, that she suggested to me the idea of presenting this historical relic to your cabinet of curios.

If you desire it, shall express the button either to yourself or the ethn gallery, as you may elect and if on inspection and examination, you conclude to accept it for the purpose named she offers to you as a free gift, if not, you can return it to me at my expense.

In conclusion I beg to state that no remuneration is expected, and none will be accepted by her under any circumstances -

I shall be pleased to hear from you and remain

Anthony Hyde Esq
Secretary The Corcoran Gallery of Art Washington

Sir,

We have the honour to inform you that we have just acquired a fine portrait of Henry Laurens by Copley which we venture to think might be worthy the consideration of your Committee. We have had the portrait photographed, and enclose a copy herewith and if desired we shall be willing to send the original for the inspection of your Committee in exactly the same manner as we did the Franklin. We have not offered the picture here to anyone and propose not to do so till we have heard from you.

Laurens was born in Charleston S.C. in 1724 - was an early opponent to British Grievances - became President of the Council of Safety of S.C. and of the Provincial Congress of S.C. - in 1776 member of the Continental Congress - signed the Articles of Confederation but not the Declaration of Independence - was President of the Continental Congress from Nov 1. 1777 to December 10. 1778. In 1779 he was appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to Holland but was captured by the British on his voyage and thrown into the Tower of London as a State Prisoner, where he was confined for 14 months. On his discharge he went to Paris and as one of the Commissioners appointed by Congress, signed the preliminary articles of peace between the U. S. and Great Britain, together with Franklin and Jay. He returned to America in 1783 and devoting the remainder of his life to agriculture, died at Charleston in 1792.

The chief points of interest about the picture are

- I Portrait of a President of Congress
- II Painted while in the Tower as a prisoner
- III Painted by Copley the distinguished American artist
- IV Pedigree of the picture perfectly satisfactory. It was painted by Copley for Hollis one of the benefactors of Harvard College. It has hung for more than 100 years in the hall of the family mansion of the Hollises "The Hyde near Ingatestone Essex". Thomas Hollis bequeathed his estate and property to Thomas Brand who took the name of Thomas Brand Hollis and he in his turn left the estate and possessions to his friend John Disney in whose family the "Hyde" has continued to date. This old establishment long in the family has just been broken up and the contents of the house sold by auction.

Copley's intimacy with the Hollis family may be inferred by there being now preserved in the Gallery of Harvard College portraits of more than one member of the family painted by Copley and presented by the family to the college. Copley also painted John Adams when in London and Adams was very intimate with Hollis. (See Disney's Memoirs of Thomas Brand Hollis)

This portrait of Laurens does not appear to be known while another portrait by the same artist appears to have been engraved, though we are unable to ascertain for the moment where the original of the engraved portrait is.

The portrait is in capital condition and the frame bears the name of Copley. The inscriptions on the portrait and the view of the Tower in the background, add to its interest.

We should esteem it a favour if you would kindly give us a decision by cable as soon as possible, whether you would care to have the picture sent for inspection. Our registered address is Muller London and the words

Send	} Laurens
or Decline will be quite sufficient instruction to us.

The price is Two hundred guineas (£210) and we give you the definite refusal of it till we hear from you.

We are Sir

Your obedient Servants

Henry Stevens & Son

My dear Nannie -

I was indeed surprised to hear that you had arrived in Lynchburg. - Mr. Kim's letter with Mr. Conover's inclosed has just arrived. & I am very glad that Mr C decided to take the little collection of Antiques. - When you imagine that the State of Ohio paid Tom Jones as much for a bust of Lincoln as this whole matter costs, there is hardly any reason to expect wonderful works of art in such number.
But if I could afford it, I would not hesitate a moment to adorn my little garden with these statues & fragments. So you need not feel any hesitation in the premises - I am sure that Mr. Cochrane will be more than content to show he receives the works - The Venus should be placed in a niche so that it can be turned around - & as I wrote you before with the exception of the head being a little small it is very much like and almost as good as the Capitoline Venus, the hands in fact have been restored by casts of the Capitoline Venus so they seem to belong to her - as the pose is the same & the size equal.

I wish Mr. Cochrane would give me the right to buy up some real antiques for him as they are found & ~~and~~ offered to me at merely nominal prices - because if I had the right a great many excellent heads in bronze & marble & figures to that go to the museums in Berlin & other cities could find their way to Washington & thus a nucleus for a good Antique Museum could be formed which we do not possess & need very much - for instance - a few years ago I could have bought a beautiful bronze head of a Victoria perfectly preserved for 400 francs but I could not spare the money & so it passed into other hands. also a statue of Eros for 600 francs found recently & offered to me by the Archaeological Society - I find myself incapable of doing what I could & would for the good of our Country in this respect for lack of the means - the Eros went to Berlin I believe - of course these matters are all done so the means - not spoken of by any one - there is no thing wrong in it - I only buy what belongs to those

Dear Sir

I hoped to be able to visit Washington before this, and see for myself the condition of the "Niagara" with the intention of making the picture perfect.
Of course everything depended upon my health - I find that the changeable weather of the autumn and the cold of winter aggravates my complaint, making it inexpedient for me to attempt so important an undertaking -

I must be in tolerable condition for the work as it may require a good deal of repainting as well as retouching to restore the picture -

I hope that in May, after returning from Mexico, I shall feel well enough to undertake it.

I shall be glad to know if the new process of removing the stains has been tried and if so with what success -

Yours truly
